DAYLIGHT BAKERY

TO START TODAY

Wrapped Bread Crusade for City Finally Brings Result.

LOAVES TO BE HEAVIER

New Firm Will Use Higher Quality of Material Put Up in Sanitary Packages.

The wrapped bread crusade, which has been advocated so strenuously by The Washington Herald during the past few years, will be given a decidedly forward impetus this morning when the Daylight Bakery, located in Lamont Street Northwest, just off the Avenue of the Presidents, will be opened for business.

The establishment, which is to be operated by the management of the Old Dutch Market, will wrap in sanitary sealed wax paper its entire output of bread. This will be the only bakery in Washington following this policy. At present several of the other local bakeries are turning out the wrapped product, but they are sealing only an insignificant small percentage of their total output. Every loaf of bread that leaves the Daylight Bakery will be wrapped. It is believed that this policy soon will result in other establishments adopting the idea.

Bread is on Bakery. The bakery will impart an additional impetus of an important nature to the crusade by turning out loaves of bread even in excess of the proposed standardization weights suggested by Col. W. C. Haskell, District Commissioner of Health and Measures. One of the most serious drawbacks to the wrapped bread campaign so far, has been the reduction in the weight of the loaves, avowedly for the purpose of compensating for the cost of the sealing process. The Daylight Bakery will not make the public stand the expense of the sanitary process; it will bear it itself. And what is more, it will turn out loaves weighing even more than the bare loaves of many of the bakers. It is expected that this policy likewise will force the other bakers into line, thus paving the way for the rapid realization of the universal wrapping of the product.

"Krumm Krust" is the brand of bread to be sold by the new bakery. It will be baked in 2 1/2 and 4-cent loaves, all of which will be sealed. The bread will be sold at all of the twelve stores operated by the management of the Old Dutch Market. The highest quality of materials will be used in the manufacture of the bread, and absolute purity and cleanliness is insured by the adoption of the sanitary policy. There will be two bakings a day—morning and evening. The bakery was used for the first time last night, and bread will be available at all of the twelve stores early this morning.

The building which houses the bakery is new, as well as its entire equipment. The establishment is thoroughly modern in all its aspects. Its appellation—Daylight Bakery—was selected because of the abundance of purifying light that pervades every room and every corner of the entire building. The exterior of the building is of stucco design, and the interior is finished throughout in white. The floor is of polished tile, and the building in its entirety presents an immaculate appearance that speaks silent of purity and cleanliness.

Many Modern Features. The equipment is of the most modern design and is direct from the factories. Practically all of the machinery is from the firm of J. H. Day in Cincinnati, Ohio. One of the features of the bakery is the large white enameled brick oven. It was installed by the Peterson Oven Company, of Chicago. It is possible to bake in the oven as many as 30 loaves at the same time. The oven has a capacity of 10,000 loaves a day. One of the unique points is that the oven is cooled, fired, and cleaned from a tiny separate room, thus protecting the bread from dust and dirt.

Each loaf of bread will be weighed before baking, about an ounce being allowed for the diminution in weight that occurs during the process. The management announces that it will give 25 per cent more bread for each cent spent than any other bakery in Washington. This assertion is made after specimens of bread from every large establishment in the city have been carefully tested and the weights compared with those that the Daylight Bakery will observe.

The bakery is in charge of a man who is recognized throughout the city as a peer in the baking business. He is well known here, having been engaged in business in the National Capital for many years. He is thoroughly acquainted with all phases of the baking trade and is fully qualified to put into effect the broad policy outlined by the management.

Transcontinental Hikers Here. William Phillips and Norman B. Turner, of Wilmington, Del., passed through Washington yesterday afternoon on their way across the continent via the foot route. The youths will sleep in the open during their entire journey. They will earn their way by selling post cards. It is expected the trip will take three months.

Pruritis, a Severe Form of Eczema

A Method of Home Treatment that is Very Effective.

There is probably no other remedy so well known as S. & S. for the blood. And it is remarkably effective in that form of skin disease known as pruritis, or intense itching. The action of S. & S. is rapid. It contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment. And the medical elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well-balanced health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food. These facts are brought out in a highly interesting book on skin diseases, compiled by the medical department of the Swift Specific Co., 184 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is mailed free, together with a special letter of advice, to all who are struggling with a blood disease.

Get a bottle of S. & S. to-day from your druggist. It will surprise you with its wonderful action in the blood. Don't accept anything offered you as "just a good one." The only reason why anyone should not try S. & S. is the large profit made on something cheaper from crude drugs. Beware of any attempt to persuade you to buy something in place of S. & S.

SENATOR McCUMBER ATTACKS TARIFF BILL

North Dakota Member Declares the Finance Committee Has Discriminated Against Farmer.

SMOOT OFFERS SUBSTITUTE

The first Republican assault on the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill yesterday was made in the Senate by Senator McCumber of North Dakota, who addressed himself especially to the effect of the measure on the American farmer. "The bill seems to have been conceived in animosity against every American industry that really needed protection," said Senator McCumber. "But the special object of its choler and hate is the American farmer. The Democratic party is the beneficiary of the farmer's fidelity to his own party last fall. And for you now to be his executioner for the offense of being misled by you strikes me as being one of the most cold-blooded propositions I have ever heard of."

Senator McCumber declared that the tariff of 25 cents a bushel on wheat had benefited farmers from 19 to 22 cents a bushel during the last year, and that half of the duty had been paid by the American miller. He declared that the removal of the duty would not cheapen the price of bread to the ultimate consumer.

"The only people who will be benefited by cheaper wheat will be the comparatively few middle men and millers," he declared. Senator McCumber asserted that any reduction in woolen goods that follows the placing of wool on the free list will be the result of business stagnation and not the result of tariff revision.

He presented figures to show that the price of American wheat dropped rapidly after the passage of the Canadian reciprocity pact in 1911, and asserted that the day Canada turned the agreement down, the price of wheat advanced 6 cents in the United States.

He described the Taft reciprocity agreement as an attempt to trade "something for nothing" and declared that the present Democratic attitude in this manner: "Inasmuch as you turned down our offer of something for something, we will make you a present of everything for nothing; we will injure our farmers to the greatest possible extent, and we will not ask anything in return. Just send your wheat over here, glut our markets, destroy the prosperity of our farmers, not that the Democratic party loves you more, but that it loves our farmers less."

"The Democratic party not only has turned the country's other cheek to be smitten by Canada, but has tied its hands and turned its whole face to a knockout blow."

He criticized the bill because it places the products of Northern farmers on the free list and gives the rice growers of the South a duty of 25 per cent on rice. "Pass this bill as it is and unless the cut-throat policy which annihilated the Republican party in 1912 comes, there will not be a Democratic State in the whole North," warned Senator McCumber.

"I am here to declare that if the tariff should be high as to absolutely prohibit importations of every farm product, it would not improperly or unduly increase the value of these products," said the Senator. "Why? Because we are still an exporting nation. We still are capable of over-supplying our own markets."

Senator McCumber's prepared address was delivered yesterday because he wished to leave Washington temporarily. Otherwise the speech would have been withheld until Wednesday or later, as Senator Simmons, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, intended that debate should not begin until July 15.

Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, a Republican member of the Finance Committee, yesterday submitted in the Senate his substitute for Schedule K of the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill.

The schedule covers wool and the manufactures of wool. The Senator from Utah is a woolen manufacturer, and has made a special study of the schedule. His amendment divides wool into three classes—in the first class he includes merino wool, clothing wools, and such as have been imported from the Argentine Republic, New Zealand, Egypt, Australia, South Africa, Russia, and other like wools of pure English blood. In class 2 he includes camel's hair, goat hair, alpaca, and the wools of like animals. The duties provided are on secured wools of the first class 10 cents a pound, and in the grease 15 cents. On the second class the duty shall be 10 cents secured and 15 cents in the grease. On class 3 the duty shall be 7 cents a pound in the natural state and 10 cents if secured. A provision is added for this class of wool which allows a drawback equal to 10 per cent of the duty paid on so much of the importation as is used in the manufacture of carpets, mats, rugs, and like articles.

ZOO PARK BRIDGE PLANNED

Structure to Be Finished in Two and One-Half Months.

Zoo Park bridge, from Adams Mill Road entrance to the park, will be completed in about two and one-half months, according to a statement made by the District official in charge yesterday. The structure, which replaces an old log bridge, will cost about $20,000 and was provided for in the sundry civil act for 1913. It will be constructed of reinforced concrete and will have a facing of rough stone. It will be 114 feet long, forty feet wide, while the span will be about eighty feet long.

Although a Federal improvement, the bridge was designed by W. A. Draper, assistant engineer of bridges for the District, who was employed for that purpose by the Smithsonian Institution, which controls Rock Creek Park. Mr. Draper will superintend the construction work. He believes that the bridge will be some 10 to 15 years ahead of the others.

ALEXANDRIA CHAMBER REPORTS ON TAXATION

Self-Sustaining Counties Are Willing to Co-operate in Relieving State Assessment Before Legislature.

STORM DAMAGES BALTIMORE

Storm in Surrounding Country. Baltimore, Md., July 14.—A high wind-storm, which swept over Baltimore and the surrounding country early today, did great damage. The storm lasted about an hour, and in that time trees were blown down in all sections of the city, windows were broken, and havoc in general was caused.

It is feared that the fruit in many parts of Baltimore County was greatly damaged, because many of the trees were blown down and thousands of limbs were blown off others.
